Please be aware that, in addition to your professors, Dr. Andrew Presti is available for advice and assistance with your writing. If you find that you need additional assistance to develop your writing skills, please avail yourself of Dr. Presti's help. You can contact him at andrew.presti@shu.edu to request an appointment. Any HONS student may seek out Dr. Presti's assistance with writing and your professors may refer you to him, if they feel your writing requires attention. If one of your professors refers you to Dr. Presti, you are expected to take action on this referral.

Course Description

In the colloquium on medieval civilizations, we will be looking at several major cultures during the period from approximately the fifth century C.E. to the fifteenth century C.E. Throughout the course we will focus on four civilizations: the Byzantine Empire, China, the Islamic world, and Western Europe. In addition to following the development of each of these civilizations, we will also be attentive to the ways in which they encountered and entered into relationship with one another.

Structure

The colloquium will consist primarily of discussions guided by the professors. Your teachers will also provide the necessary context and background to help you to understand the texts. The readings and other assignments noted for each topic are to be done before class, as they are the basis for class discussions.

Objectives

On completion of this course, you will be able to:

- understand the development and interaction among the four civilizations studied in the course;
- discuss the principal ideas embodied in the texts we have studied;
- relate these ideas to their historical contexts, and compare them with each other;
- develop and support an argument on the basis of primary texts;
- compare texts and draw conclusions on the basis of close reading and critical analysis.

Course requirements

This is a six-credit course, requiring a correspondingly significant time commitment in terms of reading and preparation.

1. There will be a short quiz/writing assignment each class, based upon the readings assigned for that day. These assignments will cumulatively be worth 20% of your grade. Make ups are not allowed except when accompanied by documentation from a medical professional. In any case, no more than two quizzes can be made up, and they must be done within a week of the absence.

2. Three 4 page papers will be assigned during the course of the semester. For each paper you will receive a list of topics from which to choose. All papers will require you to analyze the primary texts we have read for class. The papers count for 20% of the course grade.

We expect that any work you submit as yours will be your own work, and not that of another. Any citation of another's words or ideas (other than matters of common knowledge), whether by direct quotation or virtual paraphrase, must be appropriately indicated by quotation marks and properly cited from the text. Copying or downloading a block of material and changing a few words does not make the resultant text your own; always indicate your sources – not doing so constitutes plagiarism, however unintentional.

3. Three tests will be given during the semester, in which you will be asked to identify and analyze quotations taken from the assigned readings. The three tests taken together constitute 20% of your final course grade.

4. There will be a final oral exam that will constitute 20% of your grade.

5. Class participation counts for 20% of your final grade. This course is meant to be a "colloquium" in the formal sense: an ongoing conversation about the medieval world. In most cases, the conversation will focus on one or several texts of the period. Your preparation for each conversation will include your reading the assigned text(s) before the class. Obviously, active participation is important in this type of class, and each person's input is valuable. Come to class prepared to discuss the readings, even if that means just asking relevant questions about material you did not understand. Come to class prepared to be active and engaged. The participation grade depends on both the quality and the quantity of your participation. Obviously the most basic form of class participation is regular attendance. More than 3 unexcused absences will result in a failing grade for class participation; more than 6 unexcused absences will result in a failing grade for the course. For an absence to be considered excused you must have documentation from a medical professional or the Office of Student Affairs (or Athletic Dept. in the case of athletes) indicating that you were unable to attend the particular class from which you wish to be excused. In cases of an extended absence (due to serious illness or emergency) you must obtain documentation from the Office of Student Affairs indicating the reason for the absence. If you stop attending class it does not mean you have withdrawn from the course. In order to withdraw you have to fill out a withdrawal form (obtainable from the dean's office or the Honors office). Non-attendance is not withdrawal. Being late 3 times is the equivalent of one absence. This includes returning to class late after the break. Those who miss either half of class will be considered absent. Breaks in class are given at the discretion of the instructors (including the length and time of the break). Normally a break is given around 9:30 or so. Chronic lateness is disrespectful and disruptive. Please take care of personal matters before class (e.g., bathroom, meals, etc.); apart from an emergency there is no good reason to get up and leave the classroom while class is going on. Since this is a text-based class, having the required texts with you in class is essential – it is not optional. Bring the necessary hard copies of the texts with you to class; failure to do so will negatively affect your grade, since it indicates a lack of preparedness. Doing work for other classes during this class is completely unacceptable. Private conversations, whispered commentary on what others say during class, and/or passing notes are inconsiderate to others and destructive of the learning process. Laptops, tablets, ipads, cell phones and other electronic devices may not be used during class. Please silence your cell phones before class, put them out of sight and do not check for text messages while class is in session.

Criteria for evaluating class participation	Grade range
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - participates actively and voluntarily every class by contributing to classroom discussion - demonstrates familiarity with readings - insightful - answers questions knowledgeably - asks questions relevant to readings and displaying intellectual curiosity - always brings relevant texts to class - responds to others' comments with respect and interest - takes responsibility for the success of the class on a daily basis 	A (if all of these criteria are met most of the time)
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - participates voluntarily and actively most days and at least every week - shows some familiarity with readings - always brings relevant texts to class 	B (if all these criteria are met most of the time)
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - participates occasionally and/or usually only when called upon - shows some familiarity with readings, but little specific knowledge - does not always have relevant texts in class 	C (if one or more of these criteria are present)
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - in general, responds only when called upon - does not ask or answer questions - does not always seem prepared - does not always have relevant texts in class - takes no discernible active role in class - comes late to class - brings food to class, checks cell phone, does work for other classes - shows lack of respect to classmates or teacher 	D – F (if one or more of these criteria are present)
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - has more than the equivalent of 3 absences 	F

Volunteering to read in class is helpful and welcome, but it is no substitute for active class participation. It is not a factor in determining the participation grade.

Grading Scale for quizzes, exams and writing assignments and for calculation of the final grade:

93-100 A	90-92 A-	86-89 B +	83-85 B	80-82 B-
76-79 C +	73-75 C	70-72 C-	66-69 D +	63-65 D
60-62 D-	0-59 F

Disability Services Statement:

Students at Seton Hall University who have a physical, medical, learning or psychiatric disability, either temporary or permanent, may be eligible for reasonable accommodations at the University as per the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and/or Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. In order to receive such accommodations, students must identify themselves at the Office of Disability Support Services (DSS), provide appropriate documentation and collaborate with the development of an accommodation plan. The DSS phone number is 973-313-6003. For further information, please go to <http://studentaffairs.shu.edu/health/DisabilitySupportServices.html>.

Proficiencies

This course satisfies the requirements for both the Critical Thinking and the Reading/Writing proficiencies, which are required as part of the University Core Curriculum. In addition to the content, subject matter, and themes of the course, it is also crucial to develop those skills and practices that help us to develop our abilities to read carefully, understand precisely, and articulate our insights clearly. Not only are these skills cross-disciplinary; they are an essential component in our development as intelligent persons.

To satisfy the requirements for the Reading/Writing proficiency a course must include a significant amount of writing (both formal and informal) along with an expectation that there will be several hours of academic reading per week. Approximately 80% of the course grade will be based upon writing, whether in the form of papers, quizzes, or tests. The requirements for this Colloquium have been designed with this goal in mind. Readings for the course are taken entirely from primary sources. This is based on the conviction that it is good to read and analyze the authors' own words, rather than beginning with what others have written about them. A goal of the course is to increase your ability and confidence in being able to read and analyze primary texts.

It is one thing to run your eyes over the words on a page; it is quite another to read attentively and critically. The Critical Thinking proficiency is geared toward developing your abilities to understand and think through the course readings. This means, among other things, learning to read texts carefully, being able to follow the author's train of thought, becoming attentive to nuance within a text, and being able to articulate your insights clearly and precisely, both in your writing and in class discussion. Critical thinking also means raising questions about what an author has to say. Is the author's point convincing? Why or why not? How does a particular author's point of view compare with that of another author dealing with the same issue? Who do you think is right? Not only is critical thinking an essential component in reading texts; it is also necessary to apply to your own writing, so that what you write comes across as clear, well-organized, and coherent. A number of course assignments (including class discussion) are aimed at helping you develop the practice of critical thinking.

Required texts:

The Norton Anthology of World Literature, 4th edition. Volume B. W.W.Norton 978-039391330-9 (You should already have this text from the first colloquium)
