Bryan currently works as a Stakeholder Liaison out of the Edison, NJ office. He's been at this position since September 2005.

Bryan started with the Internal Revenue Service in 1985 as a Taxpayer Service Representative in Newark. After about 3 years he became a Tax Auditor and stayed in that position for about 10 years. Around 2001, Bryan began working in a pilot group called the Non-Enforcement Compliance Group. This group focused on educating new business owners on their tax responsibilities. This group dissolved after about 2 years, when Taxpayer Education and Communication (TEC) was formed. In TEC, Bryan worked as a Tax Specialist for about 4 years.

Bryan graduated from the University of Alabama in 1984 with a degree in Business Administration
